In mid-August 1951 a new school was set up at Papa for armored units. The commander is a colonel. In the command are eight officers, among whom is a Russian, Captain Vitjski (sic), and six non-commissioned officers. There are two battalions there which include in each one service unit and its command and two companies of T-34 tanks (totaling 16 tanks). There are also one unit of communications engineers (radio-telegraph) and one artillery unit. At the same station there is a school of Russian language and culture at which attendance is required of all the military personnel. There are two courses, one for officers and one for non-commissioned officers and troops.
